SHERIDAN'S VICTORY.

Early Expected to Make a Stand at Strasburg.

demolished in great haste. Very soon after this the rebels could be seen dashing out through the main street of the town taking the road to Strasburg.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.

Information received by the Government to noon to-day, makes it certain that Sheridan has secured 5,000 prisoners and every hour more are being sent to the rear.

It is believed here that Early will make a stand at Strasburg. The advantages of position are great. Sheridan's cavalry will be able to outflank the position.

FROM WASHINGTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.

The Advertiser of Washington special says: On Sunday, detachment of the 13th and 14th U. S. cavalry, numbering 100 men, engaged in a skirmish with a force of rebels under Lt. Lytle, by direction of Maj. Gen. Augur, made a reconnaissance from here to Rie Bridge, across the Rapidan, which was destroyed. A rebel ambuscade's deposit containing a considerable amount of stores, and a mill, in which were stored 4,000 barrels of flour, were also destroyed—200 miles and forty miles from the capture of the rebels. The few guns which the rebels had were captured.

On Monday, Hunt and the rebels should be sufficient, together with his record in the field, to define his position.

The Pioneer, one of the Copperhead papers which circulated the slander on Gen. Hooker, above contradicted. We demand its retraction.

THE DRAKE.

CARVER COUNTY.

The draft continues to progress slowly but surely. The most delinquent counties are being drawn first. Carver county's quota was drawn yesterday with 100 per cent added. The following is the quota of each town in the county:

The more brazen of the McClellanites still continue at intervals to repeat the exploded fact that the soldiers in Virginia are with them. About all the soldiers in Virginia who want Little Maclellan, are within the rebel lines. McClellan's letter published a letter from Grant's front stating that upon the receipt of the news of McClellan's nomination at Chicago, the rebel soldiers mounted their wings along a front of twelve miles and announced their satisfaction in cheers; while our boys repaid the insult by mounting our works and cheering for Old Abe. The incident shows pretty well what soldiers are in favor of McClellan. The Union soldiers will cast no vote for a party which in every State where it has a legislative majority has excluded them from the right to vote, and in every other State has endeavored to prevent the passage of laws enabling soldiers to vote.

We cut the following dispatch from the Chicago  Tribune and command it to the attention of the Pioneer:

GARDEN CITY, Mo., Monday, Sept. 19.—The Bangor Whig of this morning has unnoticed returns from 80 towns in addition to the original 100, and the total number of returns, graphed, making in all 361 towns, cities and plantations, giving Cony 54,868, and Howard, 50,200, total 105,068. The vote in Aroostook county is close. The Democratic candidate, C. C. Farnum,..... 12 Jackson,..... 56

THE BATTLE OF MALVERN HILL.

The New York World continues to contradict the statement that General McClellan was on a gunboat during the great battle of Malvern Hill; but offers no evidence but its own unsupported assertion. We yesterday copied from the New York Tribune McClellan's admission that "he could not remember" whether he was on a gunboat or not on that occasion, and "thought it probable he might have been." He confessed, however, that he was nearly three miles from the scene of battle all day. To this we now add the testimony of two important witnesses before the Committee on the Conduct of the War. We call Col. Rufus Ingalls, of the Army of the Potomac, and Gen. S. J. H. McMichael.

"Question. Where was the General while that battle was going on?"

"Answer. He was a part of the time, on shore and present with his troops. A part of the time he was on board Captain Rodgers' vessel, the Galena, and with four or five other vessels that Captain Rodgers was present with. We were at Malvern Hill the evening of the day, and continued the next day, and at each time our correspondent, who was with the army at the time, saw General McClellan on board the vessel during the hottest of the fighting."

Speaking of the battle of Malvern Hill, Gen. Barnard asks and answers:

"Where, this day, is the commanding General?" Off with Captain Rogers to select the final position of the army and its depots. He does not tell us that it was his own signal that he did this, nor does he tell us that he was with his army, for his journey was ten or fifteen miles down the river, and was thus still absent till late in the afternoon.

This is the first time we ever had reason to believe that the highest and best general of the Union army, was at battle, was separating himself from his army to reconnoiter a place of retreat."

To this conclusive evidence that the battle of Malvern Hill was fought and won by McClellan's Corps Commanders, and that its fruits were lost by his timidity, we add the following from the Evening Post:

"The battle would appear to settle a fact which General McClellan did not remember. But Captain Rodgers, of the Galena, can testify that General McClellan was aboard that ship on the day in question, for six hours, from nine until three; and our correspondent, who was with the army at the time, saw General McClellan on board the vessel during the hottest of the fighting."

The Mobile Register takes the following review:

"Considering the nature of the artificers of that platform—that is to say, a knot of Northern politicians—our pronounces their handiwork quite creditable, and fully as good as could have been expected, were we to do justice to their political aspects, it comes near up to the sentiment of the masses of the Northern people, we are obliged to confess that it indicates an immense store of political acumen.

The first resolution of "adherence and unswerving fidelity" to the Union, contains words of courage. They were obliged to do justice to their political aspects, and we do not doubt but sincerely hold the opinion that a restored Union will be most "conducive to the welfare and prosperity of all the Northern States and Southern."

EDUCATIONAL.

Education Exercises of the Franklin School.

Speeches by Rev. John Mattocks Senator Ramsey, Mayor Stewart and Others.

A little more than a year ago, ground was broken on Broadway, near Tenth street, for a new school house. Now there stands upon that spot an elegant edifice, built of the beautiful blue stone for which St. Paul is so celebrated. It is nearly square, being sixty by sixty-two feet, and is fifty feet high. Entering the spacious front doors, we find a hall running through the building and on either side a school room occupied by the Upper Pupils. Upon the second floor are two or two rooms, separated by folding doors, one occupied by the Grammar School, in charge of Prof. Foster, and the other by the Intermediate Department, in charge of Mrs. Haines.

The third story is finished off into one large school room in the center with recitation rooms on each side. This story is not used at present, but will be called into requisition as the wants of the schools demand.

THE DEDICATION exercises took place upon the second floor, the folding doors being thrown back, making one large room, which was nicely decorated with evergreens. Prof. Gates, of the Jefferson School, had the children in, opening the exercises with the well-known song, "The Star Spangled Banner."

REV. JOHN MATTOCKS made the first remarks, saying that they had invited the kingdom of the world to visit the kingdom of the board of Education. He told us that we were in the beginning of future greatness and that the schools already established evinced the feeling in this city in the cause of education. He alluded to the number in the schools and said the average amount was one thousand, all of whose minds are being molded and shaped for the day.

In regard to the building he gave some interesting statistics. The building alone had cost $10,000, the lot $1,500, and the furniture $1,200, making all $13,500. But it had not been built for the present year. It will be elegant as it was hoped it would be greatly inferior to those which would at some time day be erected in the city.

This had not been accomplished without incurring some debt. The building alone had cost $10,000, the lot $1,500, and the furniture $1,200, making all $13,500. But it had not been built for the present year. It will be elegant as it was hoped it would be greatly inferior to those which would at some time day be erected in the city.

REV. JOHN MATTOCKS made the first remarks, saying that they had invited the kingdom of the world to visit the kingdom of the board of Education. He told us that we were in the beginning of future greatness and that the schools already established evinced the feeling in this city in the cause of education. He alluded to the number in the schools and said the average amount was one thousand, all of whose minds are being molded and shaped for the day.

SENATOR RAMSEY'S REMARKS.

Senator Ramsey followed, speaking quite briefly. He said any citizen must be proud of this building. It was a lasting monument to the educational enterprise of the city of St. Paul. It was but fifteen years since the first Territorial Legislature convened in this city and passed the first laws relating to the educational interests of the Territory. It alluded to the fact that all must realize, that all the men now in public position will so have passed away, and the children now being educated will have filled their places.

We are sending regiments after regiments to the field, and they deport themselves like old soldiers, because they have been educated to American citizenship.

The chief characteristic of the American people is their educational enterprise. This is essential to the prosperity of the Government and nothing but this will save our people. Wherever the American flag is raised, American schools soon follow.

MAJOR STEWART, being called upon by Superintendent Mattocks, responded as follows:

It affords me rare pleasure to be present and to participate in the services of this hour. Under the direction of the Board, over which I have the honor to preside, this magnificent building, which is at once a testimony to the general interest of the community in education, and an ornament to the city, has risen to completion.

The exercises were now declared concluded, and the spectators, who had filled the large audience room, proceeded to inspect the building previous to retiring.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

The following letters were sent to Superintendent Mattocks, but by a mistake did not reach him until after the exercises were concluded:

The REBELS HAVE GOT THEIR PHIL.

The Cope will have to add new sources of escape to their judges of woe. Sorrow never come singly, and thick and fast upon the "fallors" at Fort Gaines and Morgan, and the Wabash Railroad and Atlanta, and Sheridan's great "failure" on Monday, comes the news of another "failure" in the same quarter on Thursday. The Cope are abandoned his cause—nobody to say that this remorseless castigator of the Copperfield candidate—"Strike but hear."

THE PIONEER'S ASSAULT UPON POOR LITTLE MAC.

The attempt of the Chicago Convention to combine in their Platform and nominations two antagonistic principles, to balance peace against war, and counterpoise Union with disunion, is having just the result we predicted for it at the outset. It is the attempt to wed a tiger to a wildcat—to unite fire and water. The two things effectually neutralize and destroy each other. At present our attention is attracted to the grotesque effect of this inimicible combination in the case of our distracted contemporary down street.

History probably furnishes no more touching instance of devotion to principle than is exhibited in the persevering industry with which the Pioneer keeps on knocking itself down as the representative of one principle, and then kicking itself for falling, as the organ of the other. The judicial cat, which equalized the two pieces of cheese for the contending mice by devouring them both, did not exhibit a sterner spirit of impartial justice than our Copperfield cat, who, on the one hand, punishes poor Little Mac to death with the great principles emanated at Chicago, and on the other, demolishes the same great principles with poor Little Mac.

Here is the way he pitches into poor Little Mac, in the last issue of the Editor:

"He has affected to render the military independent, or, and superior, to the civil power."

This, of course, refers to McClellan's order, as commander-in-chief, for the arrest of the Maryland Legislature, which is about the most extraordinary case of rendering "the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power," on record.

Here are two terrible blows at poor Little Mac.

He has suspended the writ of habeas corpus in peaceable States in direct violation of the constitution, which says, "All persons held to service in any State shall not be suspended, unless in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety, or the safety of the States, so require."

The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety, or the safety of the States, so require.

General Carl Schurz has taken the stump for Lincoln and Johnson. He was one of the earliest and warmest supporters of Fremont, but like all the supporters of the General, now gives his influence for the Union nominees.

THE NINTH REGIMENT.

BIRTHDAY OF Dr. POTTER—THE Discipline.

CASE BEFORO, HELENA, ARKANSAS, {
Sept. 15, 1864.

1. Dr. J. P. Paul, Prof.

I have just returned from the funeral of Dr. Potter, our First Assistant Surgeon. He died of congestion of the spleen. His death was sudden and wholly unexpected, having attended to hospital duties up to 9 o'clock last evening, and died at 7 o'clock this morning. Since the departure of Dr. Wharton, the charge of our regimental hospital has devolved upon him. He has been an indefatigable laborer. He literally worked himself to death. His Assistant, Dr. McMaster, has confined his labor to the camp, which has taken all his time, and employed all his strength. He is worthy of all commendation for his devotion to his work, and the patience with which he has borne his burdens.

We have heard of the appointment of a chief surgeon for our regiment; but have not been blessed with his presence as yet. If we ever need his services it is now.

We think there is a decided improvement in the hospitals and camp, and yet we have a few very sick men. There is hardly a man but is emaciated, and his energy nearly destroyed by the climate. You can hardly persuade yourself that these are the men who left our State a few months ago flush with health and strength and ready to meet any demands that war might make upon them. Yet it is so. Their necessary study is to do as little as possible, and to expend with the greatest economy the little failing strength they have.

We have buried forty-six, and sent up to Northern hospitals, one hundred and eighty-three, leaving in camp and hospitals about seven hundred and eighty (780) men.

The discipline of the regiment, though firm, is mild and humane in every department. No case of discipline has been called for, since my connection with the regiment, and I presume not for a long time before. While the Commandant of the post, their old Colonel, and Major Grant, the acting Colonel of the regiment, are inclined to do all they can to relieve and favor the men, the Captains and subordinate officers seem to tender of the men of their several companies, to a father of their children.

This is necessary, as little over-tax now, would soon sacrifice the regiment entirely. Several promotions have taken place of late from this regiment, and others will take place soon, in the regiment of which you will have full information before this reaches you.

Our camp for a day time such as we are having now is very well located, being to the north of the town, and on comparatively high ground. The "officers now," and the companies' quarters are well planned, and quite comfortable for this season of the year. The weather is very fine here now, and the moonlight nights are splendid.

Three gunboats lie in the river in reach of town, and the bluffs in the rear of the city are covered with forts of formidable looks and coveted prestige, placed on the 4th of July, 1863, when hundreds of rebels bit the dust.

Four thousand men could not take the place.

Steambowing is very brisk on the river from Cairo to the Gulf. The 5th, 7th, 9th, and 10th Minnesota Regiments, are up White River, and back in the country, clearing out the State.

This town is an old, irregularly laid out, sunken God-forsaken charnel house—emphatically a place of bones. It is said that several thousand Union soldiers are buried here beside the rebels. I see that the rumor is on the wings of the wind in Minnesota that we are to be removed—we would it were so, but cannot see it yet. One thing however, is true, we are good for nothing here—we might do nothing in a healthy locality.

We are looking with as much anxiety for "Jack Frost," as we are for a Surgeon, and are inclined to think that the former would do more for us than the latter, however skillful he might be.

of freedmen and their children during the week, and on the Sabbath devoted to the worship of God by the soldiers and the few northern citizens who are in government and "commission" employ.

There are three churches which are exceptions to the above, one of which is used for a soldiers' home—one for a coffin shop, and a third for a government wagon shop.

Yours truly,

D. COBB,
Chaplain, 6th Minnesota.Another Pioneer Falsehood
Nailed.

FORT SNELLY, MINN., Sept. 22, 1864.

Editor's St. Paul Press:

While publishing the Pioneer of this date I notice an article titled "The way voting is managed at Fort Snelling." Now I have no desire to cast reflections upon the Pioneer Printing Co., because I esteem them highly; but as just to the Commissioners who received the votes of soldiers demands it, I beg leave, through your columns, to say that the article is untrue. On the contrary, to our personal knowledge, the Commissioners were very particular to ascertain whether the soldier had a legal residence in this State previous to his enlistment. If not, I assure you he did not vote, unless he did it by stealing a march, which one "Little Mac" attempted; but got handsomely caught before getting out of the way.

The article states that the boys invariably support the Administration. Allow me to correct the statement.

The men who are confined in the Military Prison by the sentence of Court Martial are confined for "Little Mac," while the sick in the hospital, 75 in number—72 voted for "Old Abe."

In haste, Yours &amp;c.,

WHAT GRANT IS WAITING FOR.

The Old Guard of the Republic.

B. C. KEEFER.

From the New York Tribune.

HEADQUARTERS, ARMY OF THE JAMES, {
September 14.

There is authority for the statement that the Lieutenant-General is convinced that the forces now here—the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the James—will be beaten if they are not relieved by the reduction of Richmond, whether by the defeat of the rebel army and consequent evacuation of the city, or by a defeat of that army which shall garrison the city with it. Then why is the army quiet? why is it not to work and accomplish its object? It is because there is force enough here now, why not use that force at once, and gain the end so ardently desired? This is conclusive.

Grant is in the field, commanding, divinely-commanded, the man utterly regardless of human lives and human suffering, which rebels and Copperheads have but to fear.

The effect of the meeting was most cheering, and an increased Republican majority was expected.

I believed that no securities were given to the party, but our own.

CIVILLY, UNION MEN!

And show the Copperheads what "enthusiasm" means. There will be more distinguished speakers together tonight than at any other time during this campaign.

The McClellan Club Meeting.—The world at large and the Mickelthwaites in particular, were electrified last Sunday morning, by the appearance of that distinguished Housewife's cell, which more forcibly than grammatically, invited to be present at the club meeting last night "all who favor a reduction of the present ruinous high prices, and a decrease of the enormous rates of taxation which is eating out the substance of the people."

Fiding of that number, we ventured out to see what the distinguished had to say for himself, "which is," etc. Last week we found by actual count there were sixty-one present, and last night after a great effort they went twenty better and had forty-one on hand. Only those and no one more.

The first business was an attempt to get reports from the Ward Committees, but many Ward Committees were present, however, the Fort Snelling hero, arose and hope that there would be some interest taken in this matter, and the reports received. Vain hope.

C. Stewart Warren, Eskevire, now came to the rescue. C. Stewart is one of the Miss Van Dusen stripe, only a little more so, and as Miss Van Dusen has almost lost her club, nothing could be more appropriate than Miss C. Stewart should fill her place. She parts her hair down the middle, and gresses it so that a streak of lightning would glance off her head, and does divers and sundry other things that nice people do, and we were accordingly prepared to hear her announce that she had been up country, and found that the "hard-fisted" economy were going for McClellan. Of course C. Stewart wouldn't shake hands with one of these "hard-fisted" chaps, unless she had on "denim" kids, and then she would break a bottle of grapejuice all over herself immediately afterwards, but it sounds real pretty in a speech to tell about the economy. Miss C. Stewart's great apprehension was, that Lincoln would get too many votes. She had found, when up among the "hard-fisted" yeomanry, that a good many Republicans were on the fence, and if they (the Macies) did not do something, the really Republicans would bring them back. Terrible fate. We would advise Miss C. Stewart to devote her attention to that middle part, and the "hard-fisted" economy," while she carefully commits to memory the couplet:

"She scarce expect one of my age,
To speak in public on the stage."

The "good speakers" which were promised now commenced by Mr. Peckham's summoning from the vast deep of forty-one Daj. Baker. Daj. is too well known to need description. He prides himself greatly in his Democracy. He had met a man to-day (yesterday) who asked him to vote for Kidder, and he felt himself insulted. His first vote had been against his father, because he did not stand by the Democratic party. He continued at some length, denouncing the administration, and reciting his wonderful piety and prayers.

The next good speaker was a dutch shoeemaker named Reb. He had been three months writing a speech and he undertook to speak it without manuscript. He broke down at that, and the services of the inevitable John Grace were called into requisition to hold a candle while he read. The audience cheered and yelled, but as calm as a summer morn he spattered away for a few minutes when he retired for a drink. The audience thought he was through and cheered as vehemently as forty-one could, but he returned in a moment and said he had only just commenced. This was too much for the free speech Democracy and they hissed him off the stage. The Germans by this time know they are beloved by the Mickelthwaites.

City Attorney Flint followed the Dutchman, but as usual said nothing.

Brisbin, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, wound up the show. He got drunk at Chicago, the Friday night before the Convention, and it has taken him ever since to get sober enough to make a speech.

He commenced with the soul-stirring announcement that "England expects every man to do his duty." That seemed to relieve him, and he tamed down enough to admit that he had met a good many Democrats within the past few days that were disloyal. [He could probably find a good many more Democrats along with Early and Lee that are disloyal for the same reason.]

They thought they would be defeated. This was all wrong he said, and to prove it he read a letter from Eli S. Chaifield, of New York, pledging that State for McClellan by 50,000, counting Pennsylvania as sure, and Ohio doubtful, but the letter adds: "Indiana and Illinois do as well as we expect, we can get along without Ohio." Cold comfort, that.

As the audience is diminishing just twenty a week, and they were forty-one present last night, it will be seen that the McClellan Club will hold but two more meetings, and the third night the distinguished Housewife will meet "all alone in his glory."

The following persons were appointed:

First Ward—Richard Gordon.

Second Ward—Geo. C. Motte.

The two latter detachments comprise the portions of the companies stationed at or near Fort Ridgely. These allotments cover four months pay, bringing it down to September 1st.

One Wiggins of Winona, enlisted recently in the Eleventh regiment, and after securing his bounty, deserted. He was arrested last week at Winona, and taken to Capt. Sie's headquarters at Rochester. Capt. Sie placed him in irons, and putting him in charge of two members of the Veteran Reserve Corps, started him for this city. Saturday night they stopped at Cannon Falls, and by some pretext Wiggins induces them to take off his irons, when as might have been expected, he made his escape.

D. W. Ingersoll, Esq., the well known dry goods merchant of this city, has just returned from the East, and has our thanks for late papers, collected "all along the line." Mr. Ingersoll informs us that while imported goods feel the effects of the tumble in gold, we need not look for any immediate reduction in the price of cotton fabrics. The fact is there are neither the goods nor the stock to manufacture them in the market, and until the supply is very largely increased prices will be up.

Last Sunday was a very poor day and it didn't furnish a single case for the Police Court Monday morning. Yesterday afternoon, though, the police made a small haul, and Edward Conley paid three dollars for the privilege of making a noise on Third street.

Jacob Adams' horse being a little too fast, paid five dollars for displaying the animal's rapid gait.

The funeral of the late Lieut. Helm, camp of Co. G, Sixth Regiment, took place Sunday afternoon from Christ's Church. He was buried with military honors, and his funeral was attended by his parents still alive.

The disease which proved fatal was contracted at Helena, Arkansas, while on his way to the front, and he had been ill for a week when the fatal summons came.

The furlough of the Third Regiment expires to-day. They are under orders to report at Fort Snelling, and will probably leave Thursday.

S. W. regret to note the absence of our general friend, Pennock Pusey, Esq., Assistant Secretary of State. Mr. Pusey left Sunday night for a short tour of the East, but is positively pledged to be back in time to vote, if not before. He doesn't propose to let Old Abe be elected without giving him a helping hand.

As a penitent and sober he is spoken of in terms of the highest praise by both officers and men of his regiment, and was very much esteemed by the friends and acquaintances he had made here.

THE CITY!
A GLORIOUS UNION RALLY!!

Immense Outpouring of the Masses.

THE LARGEST MEETING EVER HELD IN MINNESOTA.

BRIDGE SQUARE IN A BLAZE.

Five Thousand Loyal Men Assembled.

Speeches by Hon. Wm. Windom, Senator Wilkinson and Gov. Miller.

Torcheslight Procession, Transparencies, Fireworks, &amp;c.

St Paul was awake last night. The Union men were out in force and the soldiers hung their heads. Early in the evening the booming of cannon announced to the people that the grand rally for the Union was to take place, and they commenced to assemble at Bridge Square in large numbers. Two stands had been erected, one in front of Ingerson's Block, for the use of the band and the Gee Club, and the other in front of Stewart's Block, for the speakers.

These stands were ornamented with numerous transparencies. One of them was illustrative of the peace that the Copperheads would make if they had the opportunity. At the top was the word "Compromises," and beneath this a temple stone inscribed, "In memory of the Union Heroes who fell in a needless war." "Union" on one side of the stone stands a Union soldier, who has lost a leg, leaning on crutches, and upon the other a rebel officer. Their hands are clasped over the stone, the Union soldier with head bowed down, trampling the American flag, and the rebel officer, with head erect, distinctly flanking their dirty rag. At his feet is a widow weeping, who has lost her all in this "useless" war.

Another was entitled "McClellan's Base," and represented that gauntlet individual as riding two horses in different directions, one labeled "Chicago Platform" and the other "McClellan's Letter." Between and beneath the horses is a dead chum, called "Field of Disunion."

A third was the "Chicago platform" with various planks labeled "Seymour," "Wood," "Belmont," "Harris," "Vallandigham," and "Dix" standing in different directions while Little Mac, endeavoring to reach the "White House," is clutching a ladder called "War Letter."

There were several other transparencies, these were the most noticeable. The mottoes were good, and among them we noticed the following:

"Gold and McClellan, both filling, indicate that the country is improving."

Reverse side: "Union victories—Name, Atlanta, Verona, Sherman, Valley."

"Lincoln and Johnson. We propose to fight it out on this line."

Reverse side: "Our Peace Commissioners, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan."

"The Union must and shall be preserved. Liberty and Union, one and inseparable, now and forever."

The Press office and all the buildings contiguous to the square were brilliantly illuminated, and threw a blaze of light upon the assembled thousands, rendering the scene magnificent.

The band entertained the audience until half past 7, when Senator Ramsey, President of the Club called the assembly to order and with very brief remarks introduced the band.

HON. WM. WINDOM, member of Congress from the First District.

Mr. Windom said that he was happy to meet so many and to meet them to discuss the great issues now presented. Our platform is our country, and in such a cause we ought to rise above party taints. In this connection he forcibly alluded to Douglas' assertion that there were but two parties, patriots and traitors.

For a few minutes the speaker then recounted the benefits Minnesota had received from the General Government and stated that if any State had no reason to complain it was our own. Under McClellan's Administration the House of Representatives passed a liberal homestead bill, but the Senate clung to its most beneficial clauses, and then the old Pub. Func. voted it. When Abraham Lincoln's Administration came into power a liberal homestead bill was promptly enacted and we are reaping the benefit of it. He believed that this could not be rendered as benefits which more than counterbalanced the burdens that had been placed upon us. Another liberal act was the grant of three or four million dollars worth of swamp lands to the State.

Two years ago, the Indian outbreak occurred, and our people suffered to the amount of one and a half millions of dollars, and within four weeks after Congress met, the House had passed a bill granting this amount. The Senate cut it down to two hundred thousand dollars and appointed Commissioners to investigate the claims upon which we have since obtained $1,370,000. Ohio and other States presented claims for damages by the common enemy, but were unable to get them allowed, while Minnesota succeeded.

Besides this, the expense which the State incurred of $350,000 had been refunded, and the Indians upon our borders removed.

He was sorry to say that in the face of all this, there were some people who grumbled because a slight tax was imposed upon them. In his district last year, the tax amounted in all to some $20,000, which was only about twenty cents a head, and if this was increased to forty cents, it would make the grumblers traitors.

We have not time or space to publish this morning the full report which we have prepared of Mr. Windom's able speech. He proceeded to review the progress which had been made since the commencement of the war, drew a vivid picture of affairs in Washington during the winter of secession, and recounted the acts of hostility committed by the rebels before Mr. Lincoln's inauguration. In regard to finances he made a pleasing exhibition, showing that so far from being bankrupt, if the war should continue a year and a half longer, not only the interest would be met, but the entire principal of our debt would be swept away in sixteen and two-thirds years, without increasing the rate of taxation. In quoting from the Chicago platform, he made a telling hit on the clause where the Copperheads pledge themselves in the future, as in the past, to stand by the Union under the Constitution. He showed what their past course had been, to illustrate what might be expected of them in the future.

His speech throughout was masterly and convincing, and did immense good.

While Mr. Windom was speaking, the torch light procession came up from the depot, escorting some six hundred recruits of St. Anthony and Minneapolis, who had come down to join us in the Union rally. They were greeted with rounds of cheers. We learn that as read, "coming to the notice of the Colonels," made us to say so, and we accordingly either owe the Colonels or the Messenger one, we don't know which.

The salute of one hundred guns in honor of Sheridan's victory ordered by Gen. Pope, was not fired yesterday. There being no guns at the Fort, the Sanford Battery had to be used, and the cartridges on hand were all six pounds, while these guns carry but four. The cartridges were prepared yesterday, and marched out to capture wooden guns in the spring. After this exploit he went to Yorktown with 110,000 men, while the speaker showed conclusively that Magruder combated him with only eight or ten thousand. He showed how he refused to reinforce Hooker at Williamsburg, but how he refused to come on the field until the battle was over; how he stopped Richmond and lay in the swamps; how after the defeat of a single corps he retreated by night and fought by day for four days; how he concealed himself on a garrison at Malvern Hill; and afterwards ran away to Harrison's Landing where he opened the political campaign by advising the President upon what basis the war should be waged.

All this the speaker graphically portrayed, and also his murderous battle of Bull's Bluff.

He quoted Alex. Stephens to show that our constitution had human liberty in its corner stone, while the rebel sham had slavery. He declared that he was in favor of peace but not such a peace as the Copperheads. His closing description of the peace that he, in common with all Union men, desired, was most eloquent, and elicited loud applause.

The speaker was frequently interrupted with applause, showing that his sentiments were heartily concurred in by the audience.

At the conclusion of his remarks the Gee Club sang "Well Rally Round the Flag," and they were followed by the band.

GOVERNOR MILLER followed in a speech that was like the sparkling and effervescent flow of champagne after a feast on substantial viands. He used a corkscrew to draw the stopper out of the crowd, and before they knew it were bursting out and bubbling all over with enthusiasm and laughter. He made some telling hits, that drew a tremor of cheer from the vast audience. Any synopsis of his remarks would fail to do justice to the happy vein of eloquence and humor in which he extinguished the Copperheads.

Some of these who in the corner stone, while the rebel sham had slavery. He declared that he was in favor of peace but not such a peace as the Copperheads. His closing description of the peace that he, in common with all Union men, desired, was most eloquent, and elicited loud applause.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A MAN HAS BEEN GREATLY BLOWN UP AND IS OTHERWISE INJURED.

While the salutes of one hundred guns were being fired yesterday afternoon, a distressing accident occurred which bids fair to be attended with fatal results.

The guns composing the Sandford Battery were posted on Baptist Hill, at the head of the bluff overlooking Sibley street. Three rounds had been fired, and the fourth cartridge was being rammed down, when a premature discharge occurred, inflicting terrible injuries upon the rammer. The name of the unfortunate man is Captain E. Miner. He is a member of Co. F, Capt. Kirkland, Hatch's Battalion, and resides in Wiesen, six miles below Prescott.

As soon as possible after his injury, he was conveyed to the St. Joseph's (Catholic) hospital, where his wounds were dressed by Drs. Cain and Stewart. It was found necessary to amputate both, about half way between the wrist and elbow. Besides this a splinter from the ramrod had cut a terrible gash in his hand and narrowly escaped striking the windpipe. The right side of his face and nose was torn in a horrible manner by the force of the explosion, rendering it a mangled mass of flesh and gore. It was under the influence of chloroform when the surgical operation was being performed, but if they go, they should be prepared to hear the same words that would appropriately fall from the lips of Jeff Davis, but by no means distasteful, should they attempt disturbance. Listen quietly, and the smoke will kill themselves with their own smoke.

The Pioneer is silent on estimates. It stated that there were about twelve hundred at the great Union meeting on Tuesday night, or perhaps two-thirds as many as were present at the Democratic ratification meeting. We were informed yesterday with a large number of persons who were present at both meetings, and not one estimated the ratification meeting at more than one-half the size of the loyal gathering Tuesday evening.

With this as a basis the Pioneer can figure either way. It can take its twelve hundred estimate and divide it by five to ascertain the number of cops that rallied, or it can adopt the two-thirds statement and allow its crowd eighteen hundred, which it multiplies that number by five to ascertain how many Union men rallied.

The Musical Society open the Augustus campaign at Ingerson's Hall to-night, with a vocal and instrumental concert. The reputation of the Society is now so well established that they do not need to go about to advertise their merits. It will be a rich treat and we determined, and is, a chance at present to determine, and has a condition last night was established with precautions.

After the shooting he was able to recover in a perfectly rational manner, and as no one who had the best of the hospital and hotel in the case.

He is a native of Kentucky, forty-three years of age, and has been married seventeen years. He has two little daughters, the thoughts of whom seemed to give him great anxiety. On the 10th of last month he started in Capt. Oakland's company on Hatch's Battalion, and yesterday was sent down from the Fort, with a few others, as a detail to have the blues for his wife, so that she will probably leave to-day.

The cause of the accident does not seem to be clearly understood, so who were present say that the man who was leader of the party removed a thumb, while others assert that it must have been owing to the swiftness of the gunpowder explosion. The ramrod was broken through the air to the bluffs back of Morris's house on Third street, but fortunately was so high that it did no damage. But one round was fired after the accident occurred.

When told that he must have both arms to express regret that he was not killed outright. His relatives to his family were touching, and said, if he could not be sent to the hospital more than on account of the shooting. He is in good hands at the hospital, and everything that human skill can devise will be done for him.

Humanitarians to his family were touching, and said, if he could not be sent to the hospital more than on account of the shooting. He is in good hands at the hospital, and everything that human skill can devise will be done for him.

River motors are quiet. The water has been stationary for several days, but the boats have made good time until yesterday. The fog of yesterday night compelled the Molles' steamer to lie up, but delayed her so much that no mail was received yesterday. The Albany took the mail and passengers down in the afternoon.

The Ariel arrived from La Crosse at seven last evening, with two large loads of freight, containing one hundred and twenty tons. We are indebted to her gentlemanly clerk, O. S. Hutchinson, for a copy of her manifest:

Gen. Sibley and a portion of his staff started this morning for Fort Ripley on an inspiring tour. He will be absent six or eight days.
